American Councils for International Education: ACTR/ACCELS is a non-profit, educational association and exchange organization devoted to improving education, professional training and research within and regarding Eastern Europe and Eurasia. American Councils administers academic exchange and training programs in virtually all fields; provides educational advising and academic testing services throughout Eastern Europe and Eurasia; and organizes conferences and seminars in the US and abroad for its membership, exchange participants, alumni, and professional groups. In addition, American Councils organizes and administers citizen exchange programs to promote cross-cultural understanding.

The FLEX program established in 1992 is the first large exchange program for secondary school students from the countries of the former Soviet Union. Participants live in American host families and attend American high schools for one academic year. The program was created by the United States Congress in order to extend a hand of friendship from the people of the U.S. to the people of the following countries: Armenia, Azerbaijan, Estonia, Georgia, Kazakhstan, Kyrgyzstan, Latvia, Lithuania, Moldova, Mongolia, Montenegro, Poland, Romania, Serbia, Tajikistan, Turkmenistan and Ukraine. FLEX is fully funded by the U.S. government and is administered by the Bureau of Educational and Cultural Affairs of the U.S. Department of State.
